

Providence Children's Film Festival presents

Teen Filmmaking Workshop: "Build a Better World"

August 10, 2017

6:00- 7:00pm

Ages 11-18

Film is a medium that most teens have a lot of experience with, but mostly in being a passive viewer. The Providence Children's Film Festival will introduce teens to film and media literacy language and concepts before and after showcasing an independent short film, and end with a filmmaking activity based on the "Build A Better World" theme, which will eventually link with teens in the other PCFF Summer Reading Program sessions. Teens will transform from passive to active viewers and media makers before your eyes! Our presentation will be part audience participation (pre- and post-screening discussion), part demonstration (film screening/active viewing), and part hands-on workshop (media-making of collaborative film project).

20 spaces available. Registration required; contact Emilie the YA Librarian to register
